Individuals Looking for Audiences to Present to Now have New Opportunity on the Horizon Thanks to Newly Developed Company, FreeSpeakerMatch.com

While some speakers command tens of thousands of dollars to speak in front of large audiences, others find it difficult to even get in front of groups and associations to spread their message for free. There are many individuals who are either just starting their speaking career or would love to speak in front of groups for free to hone their skills and gain experience in a lucrative and very competitive arena. FreeSpeakerMatch.com helps to connect those looking for audiences to speak to with the audiences that would love to hear their message.

“In the past, I’d spend a lot of time prospecting for potential speaking engagements and sending off bio and presentation information. FreeSpeakerMatch.com will cut that time investment way down and present me with opportunities I would have never found without it.” says marketing and design consultant Neil Tortella, just one of the hundreds of qualified speakers who has signed up for this unique service.

FreeSpeakerMatch.com allows speakers to create a content rich profile including their picture, link to their website, and ratings from other organizations that have hired them in the past. In addition, when organizations are searching through the picture profiles on the site, each one features a pop up window that gives a description of what subjects each speaker has experience to speak about.

“Our goal is to provide a solution for speakers who are looking to get their message out to the masses but may not have the experience and resume such that organizations are knocking on their door. Our website service will help bring those organizations that need their services right to them.” says founder and owner of FreeSpeakerMatch.com Mandy Bass.

Currently, the site is in a BETA launch mode and both organizations and speakers have the ability to sign up for a free lifetime membership. Eventually, the site plans to begin charging a fee for speakers and organizations to utilize the site, but there will never be a charge associated with actually booking an engagement. FreeSpeakerMatch.com also provides both a TIPS and RESOURCES section that offer very thorough information to help burgeoning speakers build their bio, cultivate new speaking opportunities, and develop and deliver high quality presentations. FreeSpeakerMatch.com may well be the answer that speakers and presenters have been looking for.
